

Simply Elegant

Anthony Wilson, North Carolina State University, USA

Keywords: Elegant, dramatic

This dramatic one shoulder gown with asymmetrical collar detail was created in December of 2011 for the elegant, sophisticated woman who is confident and likes making an entrance.

The design process for this garment included sketching to determine silhouette. Gerber pattern making software and draping techniques were used to create an original pattern followed by a prototype. The prototype was then fit on a model. After corrections were made to the pattern, the final garment was cut and constructed using stretch cotton sateen that was dyed a vibrant royal purple prior to construction. Gown is fully lined with a polyester lining.

