Heidi Butler, local history specialist at the Capital Area District Libraries, Lansing, Michigan, received the 2017 Dr. L. Robert McConnell Award for Innovation at CADL's annual staff conference in November. The award was given based on Butler's work to take the Local History collections from inaccessible static materials on the library's internal network to a new web service called Local History Online with over 20,000 digitized images and documents and growing. Visit the collections at <http://www.cadl.org/lhonline>.

Wendy Wasman, librarian and archivist at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, contributed a chapter to Librarian as Mentor, a new publication from Mission Bell Media. The book, edited by Eboni Johnson, assembles stories from 17 librarians on being mentors in the library profession. Wasman's chapter, "Flying Solo: Mentoring as a Museum Librarian," takes a look at the positive aspects of being a mentor to aspiring librarians and archivists. The book is available directly from the publisher (<http://www.missionbellmedia.com>) and from Amazon.com.

Monica Howell was one of two recipients of the inaugural Provost's Award for Exceptional Contributions in October 2017 at Northwestern Health Sciences University (Bloomington, Minnesota). She received the award in part for her efforts in preserving the university's history and making it accessible through the archives and in university exhibitions.

The Scholarly Resources and Special Collections team at Case Western Reserve University's Kelvin Smith Library has recently hired two new term archivists to address the processing backlog. Julia Teran, a graduate of the University of Michigan and Wayne State University, is working in the University Archives. She previously was project archivist for curation at the Bentley Historical Library at the University of Michigan. Nina Herzog, a graduate of Wright State University, is working in Special Collections. She previously was a temporary archivist at the Henry R. Winkler Center for the History of the Health Professions in the Donald C. Harrison Health Sciences Library at the University of Cincinnati.

Rosalie Gartner joined Special Collections and University Archives at Iowa State University on November 15, 2017, as the lead processing archivist. Originally from Colorado, she moved to Boston to attend Simmons College, where she earned her MS in library science with a concentration in archives management. After graduation, she worked at Emerson College for several years, doing everything from course instruction to processing to records management.
